REPORT OF THE SCHOOL COMMITTEE

To The Citizens of Wayland:

Your Committee submits herewith its report and that of the Superintendent, the School Physician and the Principal of the High School.

The most serious problem for this school, and for every public school during the past year, has been to secure and retain teachers with the right qualifications. By substantially increasing salaries the Committee has been reasonably successful in meeting the situation.

Another factor that has helped solve the problem has been the establishment in Wayland Center of a boarding house for the teachers at which board and lodging could be obtained at as near cost as possible. The need for such a place became apparent last spring when several teachers were being deterred from coming to the school because of the difficulty of finding a suitable or indeed any place at all to live. The Bennett house in the center of Wayland village seemed best adapted to the purpose because of its location and the fact that it could be rented partly furnished. It was accordingly rented by private individuals who also furnished the coal needed for the year. The necessary furniture beyond that which came with the house was provided by the kindness of Mrs. H. C. Wells. A housekeeper has been engaged with the expectation that her salary and the running expenses, apart from the rent and fuel, will be taken care of by the board paid. It is hoped that this home for the teachers may be placed upon a permanent basis, as it is of great value not only in attracting teachers to Wayland, but in making them more contented when here and thus indirectly increasing their efficiency in the school room.

Again it is necessary to emphasize the need of liberality in the matter of salaries. Fewer and fewer persons are entering the teaching profession, and of those already in it many are leaving to take up other lines of work offering higher compensation. During the past year the enrollment in normal schools in the United States has been approximately only one third of what it was four years ago, and last year alone out of 650,000 teachers, 143,000 left the profession. It is only the towns that are willing to face this situation and pay what good teaching is worth, which are going to keep or get the kind of teachers worthy of the difficult and responsible task entrusted to them.

REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS

To the School Committee of the Town of Wayland, Gentlemen:

The twenty-third Annual Report of the Superintendent of Schools is respectfully submitted. It is my tenth report.

Out of the intensive recent studies men have made of our educational institutions and our future national and individual educational needs there are two proclamations by noted educators from which quotations have been taken and used in this report. Certain ideals and principles involved in the college training of young men and young women are very potently stated. These ideals and principles are embodied in both the elementary and secondary school work in but a slightly less degree.

From an article in the October World's Work by Pres. A. Lawrence Lowell, Harvard University, the following quotations are taken:

"Education in a democracy may be regarded from two points of view: the welfare of the community as a whole, and the welfare of the individuals of whom it is composed. These two ought in the main to coincide, and must do so if the hopes of democracy are to be realized. It is not difficult to show that this is the case in respect to education. The welfare of the community requires the best equipped men that it can procure: men who will place at its disposal in the largest measure the resources of nature, or the arts, of the manifold benefits acquired by the slow progress of civilization; men whose minds are trained to see clearly and think straight; men of wide knowledge and interests, with a broad and kindly outlook upon life and its problems.

"Without academic instruction these qualities may be derived in part from natural capacity, and they may be cultivated by contact with men and affairs; but systematic education is able to produce them more rapidly and effectively, and if it does not do so has failed of its end.

"The welfare of the individual boy or girl lies in the same direction. It can be attained completely only by a full developement of their natural faculties; and since these vary greatly in different children, and all of them ought to have an opportunity to make the utmost of themselves, the means of education must not be uniform. The dull ought not to be neglected for the more capable, nor the more gifted held back for the slower progress of others.

"The college should aim to promote intellectual persistence, moral character, and a sense of responsibility both for the sake of the student's own growth and for the benefit of the community about him.

"The experience of the war has shown that college men possess a resourcefulness which has enabled them to serve effectively in military and civil positions wholly different from the life to which they have been accustomed. This is the time to raise the level of undergraduate achievement and to make college life as serious and stimulating as it should and can be made."

It is within the bounds of conservatism to say that never before has an academic education been considered of greater value than today. As we review the past we may do so with complacency and satisfaction not alone in the things the collage has done for men and women but in the excellent foundation laid for college work by the secondary and elementary schools, both public and private. In our retrospection we must be mindful of that vast number of men and women who have not taken full academic courses because of circumstances beyond their control or because of natural ability and tendencies drawing them into other lines of business who have learned to do the world's great work at the bench and in the shop and on the farm. The elementary school has given them the beginnings of an education and they have obtained the remainder of their training through contact with men and affairs, in trade schools, vocational schools, evening schools, through correspondence schools, and the floods of literature in every community library and home. Thus has education been taking on a new significance the while we have been working academically.

To-day we need to examine critically our school work to see wherein we are falling short of the great demands made upon us and the greater ones that the future will inevitably bring to the public schools. Are the plans for the future broad and big and benevolent? In what things have we failed in the past? How far short are we in the accomplishment of those things we have earnestly sought to do?

We have failed in a great measure to do the work of Americanizing all those who have come to our shores from foreign lands. We have said "Come." They have come. And then we have left them alone to dream and to long for the land afar; to magnify its joys and to minimize its sorrows and to magnify their disappointment in the land of promise if theirs has been the lot of exploitation of human energy. This great work so long delinquent as to our adult foreign citizenship is for the future educational leaders and workers to perfect. The past with its errors of thoughtlessness lies behind us; the pregnant future with its hope and possibility is all before us. Already Massachusetts is leading in this work with a Department of Americanization busily engaged in the prosecution of this vital project.

Not only have we failed to Americanize all those who have come to us from other countries but we have failed to Americanize all of our own natural born citizens. Special privileges and semi class legislation have been part of our free governmental institution so that some have been oppressed and others depressed at the partial failure of the doctrine of equal rights. The Americanization movement recognizes not alone the foreign born who do not know and understand and appreciate the ideal democracy but reaches out to our own who have failed to comprehend the ideal and so have helped to make the real democracy fall short of the ideal.

Let me repeat a few words of Dr. Lowell, "The college should aim to promote intellectual persistence, moral character, and a sense of responsibility for the sake of the student's own growth and for the benefit of the community about him."

This should be the aim of the secondary and elementary schools and the home. The home should demand that the schools give the instruction that will develop these traits; the home should demand of itself training that will lay the foundation for such school training. The easier path is the road of indulgence, a course of procedure which does not develop either muscular or intellectual fibre. Intellectual and manual skill come only through self sacrifice. Our minds and bodies must know the weariness of toil to know the joy of accomplishment. Skill of hands and keenness of mind come not in capsules neither are they passed to us on a serving tray nicely wrapped in oiled paper.

The strong teacher is a kind but hard task master. The powerful school is the joyful but stern institution whose doors say to all, "Those who enter here must leave strengthened through their own personal effort. The golden touch of influence is here; the tools for labor are here; directors and directions are here; the sunlight of centuries of human achievement are here; but the individual must bring with him personal determination and a desire to master himself."

Have not schools and homes been lacking in some measure in these important characteristics?

Our examination of the schools of the past and in great measure of those of to-day proves to us that we have sought and are still seeking to make men and women intellectually perfect but have neglected the developement of the perfect physique. The future school must attend to physical development as well as intellectual growth.

The value of healthy vigorous dynamic bodies is appreciated as never before. A health campaign is launched through visiting nurses, dental clinics, school physicians, and a State Director of Physical Education. Dietetic courses are offered in all household departments. The purpose? That disease may be prevented through the natural resistance of the body. That your home and my home may be safe from infection because all the homes of the community are occupied by people intelligent as to the laws of health and vigorous as to the resisting disease germs. The purpose? That in the end a citizenship may be produced in the coming generations that shall possess nerve, brain, and muscle of such vigor and tenacity that the maximum of skill and endurance shall prevail quite generally.

Then shall there be joy in living and delving to make our national and home life like unto the dreams of our national forbears.

Dr. Lowell mentions in the section of his article quoted in this report that children vary greatly in their natural faculties; that all should have the opportunity to make the utmost of themselves; that the dull should not be neglected or the more gifted held back.

Teachers realize keenly the great differences in children even in the same home as to intellectual power, physical condition, and natural tendencies, likes and dislikes, disposition. We also realize great differences in children from different homes in the experiences of life. The method of handling children at home in the matter of discipline and control, habit forming instruction, and all that goes to make for strength of character varies greatly in homes. So that children come to the school equipped most variedly at the same age. We realize that no system of instruction fits all children. A system of reading closely adhered to may make one child an excellent reader and another child a dullard.

So I face the "dull child" phrase skittishly and as I peer to make out what it means I behold a phantom shape take form and I see the several hundreds of occupations open to men and women whereby to make a living and to gain the joy and satisfaction of having contributed their share to the world's production for man, his wants and his entertainment. The occupations of man are varied. Man in his tendencies and desires to do that work is a wonderful being of likes and dislikes. Are there any dull children, dull young men, and young women? If so shall we classify them as mental defectives or as beings who if given their opportunity in the educational world will know how to do some kinds of work far better than many who are rated more intellectual.

Does not an examination of our educational system show that it is cut too much after the pattern that fits for doctors and lawyers and accountants, intellectual workers? Are we not giving too much emphasis that an education means less toil for the worker? How many of our students are told effectively that behind the bank counter, within the walls of university buildings, the most exhausting of toil goes on?

If the future of our educational system is to yield equal opportunity for all then it must provide training for all vocations so that every boy and every girl may find himself or herself and thereby attain the goal of self perfection as a world worker and resident. This will mean greater expenditure for education through the extension of all forms of trade and manufacturing educational institutions. An age of skilled workers calls for the production of skilled workers in the shortest time. The cost in time and non production makes the shortest route desirable.

Much as we may laud our educational institutions and much as we may dream of extending them in other directions than heretofore we have with us most vividly the great cost of maintaining schools. Sometimes it seems as if the cost is far too great. But when we take any financial statement exemplifying the cost of a school system for a year or term of years and examine it we find that a very large percentage of the outlay is for labor, not the indirect labor of producing coal and books but the direct toil of men and women in the schools with the children and young people, toil for their comfort in small part, mostly in the work of instructing. Since this is the fact it is evident that the very large increase in the cost of education the past few years is due almost entirely to the increase in wages all over the country in all lines of human endeavor. A noticeable difference is that the pay of the educators has not changed much until quite recently while that of most other labor rose very sharply early in the epoch that has wrought such great changes throughout the world. Study of this problem reveals the reason for the very marked increase in teachers' salaries reported in papers the past few weeks in so many cities and towns. Study of the wage problem relatively also shows most clearly the reason for the teacher shortage that is indeed a question of no little concern at this time. And we also see the reason for the falling off in numbers entering training for the great art of dealing with our young people.

There is indeed a shortage of teachers of serious moment. State Superintendent Thomas of Maine reports 80 schools in that State closed on account of the teacher shortage. He also estimates that unless something drastic is done at the coming town and city annual meetings that there will be a demand for 500 teachers another fall that cannot be filled. His complete report is well worth our careful study as it deals with the subject from several angles that have an important bearing on the future of all things. New Jersey is reported as seeking 1000 teachers. About one fourth of the teachers in the United States left the work during the last four years and the percentage of those fitting in Normal School to graduate during the past four years in the United States is 30 per cent below normal. Recent figures given me at the State House show that our Massachusetts Normal Schools graduated 14.6 per cent fewer girls in 1918 than in 1917, 30 per cent fewer in 1919 than in 1917, and it is estimated that the number to graduate in 1920 will be 33 per cent less than in 1917. All who graduate do not enter the school room. There is no question about the shortage of teachers and there is a prospect of a still greater shortage unless living expenses are greatly lessened, or other lines of business stop offering such good wages to workmen, or unless a very great advance in the salaries is generally made.. It is all but impossible to predict where the high water mark will be.

The serious consequences of an impaired supply of teachers, depleted by resignations, and lessened by lack of new material, lowering of the standard of instruction, is clear in the case of the teachers, but it is clearer in the case for the children. If one teacher is worried over meeting her expenses, or disheartened and dissatisfied because many of her acquaintances in other lines with less training and fewer years of service are getting much higher wages and are free from the shrivelling criticism many a teacher worker has to endure, the children in her room are suffering the loss of much valuable inspirational service as well as much loss of time. When factory workers are discontented their efficiency is diminished. Discontent among brain workers is absolutely deadening.

Your recent action in regard to the wages of our teachers seems to be fairly just and satisfactory to the needs for the present. I am confident that the teachers are quite generally satisfied with current salaries and that they have settled down for a term of happy vigorous work. In the case of vacancies we should now be able to seek teachers of the type Wayland will honor and approve. The future outlook is very uncertain and can only be met as developments point the way.

Dr. Sylvester's work in the schools is worthy of special attention and his report should be carefully read. Outside of the work and influence of Dr. Sylvester the work of giving instruction as to health and physical development consists of a few simple exercises of the calisthenic type and health talks in connection with physiology and hygiene. Several towns employ a visiting nurse who is able to supplement the work of the school physician, advise with the teacher, and follow up the advice of the school physician by visiting parents and explaining to them the needs of dental and other corrective assistance toward development into strong men and women physically. Dental clinics have been established and are proving of great worth in the care of the teeth and have lessened the expense greatly. The health and physical development subject is worth of most careful consideration.

Wayland should also consider the re-establishment of the shop and sewing lessons and should consider most carefully the value of establishing and maintaining courses in household arts.

In these times of high prices and the very high cost of education as compared to the past, cities and towns will of necessity examine more closely all the work of the schools in an endeavor to ascertain wherein the cost may be lessened or at least a slowing up of the ever increasing cost of education. The State Board of Education is studying the problem and may have in the future some recommendations worthy of study and adaptation

Already certain changes have been made in laws giving more freedom to the State Board of Education in determining methods of handling the high school problem in small towns. This is a topic that will be before many small towns in the State the next year or so and it should be studied exhaustively.

It is fitting that Wayland should make a thorough investigation of her high school situation, the means for providing for the educating of her young people beyond the grades in other communities, and thus give the high school question a thorough overhauling that our high school may either have better and more whole hearted support in the community whether we hold all the children in town or whether some are sent out of town by individuals. It is not a simple question. The advantages and disadvantages need to be weighed carefully as to the education of our young people; the financial and transportation issues will come in for close and thorough study; the length of time the out of town schools may likely be able to receive outside children.

The town of Sudbury is studying this question. The State now permits towns to unite in a union high school under the direction of a joint committee. Wayland and Sudbury may do well to consider together the proposition of a union high school.

This question should not be settled hastily. A full and thorough investigation should be made so that the facts may be fully compiled, analyzed, and the matter brought before the town in a clear and unbiased light. That which is best for the education of our young people should be done. There are advantages and disadvantages in both methods of procedure. They should be weighed carefully and the decision should be made for the interest of the boys and girls.

I wish to thank the members of the School Committee for their personal interest in the welfare of the teachers. A corps of teachers happy in the school room, comfortable and content at home, is one great step toward patient and vigorous work with the children. I am sure that the teachers appreciate this thoughtfulness and that they are giving the best of themselves to the service of the schools.

Respectfully submitted,

F. H. BENEDICT

REPORT OF HIGH SCHOOL PRINCIPAL

*Mr. Frank H. Benedict,
Superintendent of Schools
Wayland, Mass.*

Dear Mr. Benedict:

I herewith submit to you my second report as Principal of the Wayland High School.

The total number of students attending the school since September 8, 1919 is 55. The present enrollment is 50, of which 28 are girls and 27 boys. The four classes are represented as follows: Freshmen 24, Sophomores 13, Juniors 11 and Seniors 7. The 50 students now attending are distributed to the courses offered as follows: College Course 17, Science Course 5, and Commercial Course 28.

The organization of the school is much the same as last year. There have been changes in the teaching corps but the number of teachers has remained the same and the work outlined in the course of study is being given. Miss MacMillan, instructor in English is the only full time teacher remaining from last year's corps. Miss Boland is with us for Music once a week as last year. The new teachers are Miss Decatur who has the work in Latin and French; Miss Canniffe, who has charge of the Commercial work; and Miss Hosmer, who comes Tuesdays to give instruction in Drawing and Art Metal work.

Having car service between Wayland and Cochrasset has improved the school schedule, for we no longer have to excuse students early to go home on the barges. The car service has made it possible for students to obtain help after regular school hours, and has given the boys an opportunity to get together for athletic work. Several games of football have been played and quite a bit of spirit aroused. The boys are looking forward to next season to demonstrate that Wayland High has a team worth while. Steps have been taken to develop a hockey team in the near future and to arrange for base ball for May and June.

We have given up holding the "Athletic Association" meetings and in place of them are giving a few dances. Already two dances have been given by the school. The first was given by the Junior Class Nov. 21, 1919 at the Town Hall. The second was given by the Senior Class Dec. 12, 1919, at the Grange Hall, Cochrane. These were both very pleasant parties.

A part of the money given by the class of 1919 has already been spent for reference books, and the remainder will be used when we find the right books. Having acquired these books I find that the school is in need of some new book cases and a small table. I would suggest that these be obtained in the near future so as to make the books of immediate service to the students.

We are to use the "Literary Digest" this year in connection with the history work during the last part of the year. This was done last year with much success. It seems to me that while this may be enough time to give to an intensive study that we ought to have magazines on our table through the entire school year. I wish to recommend that a fund be set aside to purchase such periodicals.

The school is badly in need of science equipment but I shall speak of only two points of weakness. It is difficult to do work involving heat because one cannot get heat in sufficient quantity from our small alcohol lamps. If something better cannot be found, of course there is little need for apparatus along the line of heat. I have thought that cylinders of compressed gas might be obtained and used to supply our laboratory needs. In electricity the school is equipped for very simple work. We should begin to plan for work using commercial direct and alternating currents. The original expense for such equipment is quite large but the work is worth while.

In the past courses have been given in manual training and domestic science. It seems to me that these subjects should be given a place in our course of study again. They bring quite an expense to the community it is true. To one not in school work this expense seems entirely out of proportion to the benefit derived, but people in close touch with educational work believe that students obtain much that is worth while from these courses.

At intervals of six weeks a report showing the student's standings is sent home for inspection and four weeks later a letter is sent, if the student's work has fallen below a passing grade. It is a rare occurrence to hear from the home in case a student is doing poor work. I think it would aid much if parents would take enough interest in the student's work to communicate with me and in some cases have a personal interview. Whenever a student is absent from a class much of the value of the work being covered is lost. Made up work is never covered so well as that done in the regular class. Because of the loss whenever a student is absent, parents and guardians should be unwilling to permit a student's absence from school except for sickness of the student or some member of the family.

Respectfully submitted,

DAVID J. ALLEN

REPORT OF SCHOOL PHYSICIAN

Frank H. Benedict,

Superintendent of Wayland Schools;

Sir:

I herewith have the honor to hand you my report as School Physician for 1919.

I have reason to congratulate the inhabitants of Wayland that their children are so well cared for in the schools by all who have anything to do with their instruction and well being in their school life.

As I examine them year after year I notice a steady improvement in their physical condition. I am glad to notice an increasing tendency for parents to care for the teeth of their little children. There is at present room for improvement in some of the children. However, I expect in the future that children having perfect teeth will be as usual as the reverse to-day.

I have found all the school buildings in the town well cared for by the janitors. Especially do I notice the complete absence of the characteristic school room odor that is found in many schools where the ventilation is not so well cared for.

I regard the teachers as models in every way. I am always glad to visit the schools because I see so much to admire in the methods of teaching today. My examinations have been much facilitated by the efficient aid of the Superintendent who seems to have the schools well in hand.

I have examined every school child in town. I am glad to report that very little real disease is present among them. A few children are not properly nourished, sometimes on account of diseased teeth and tonsils.

By "defective" in most cases is meant that the teeth or tonsils are diseased. By "perfect" is meant that the teeth are not diseased or made in good condition by dental art. The apparent number of defectives is increased because I mark every child defective having even one diseased tooth. In the records I have kept will be seen that one bad tooth this year will mean two or three next, and so on during their school life.

REPORT OF THE LIBRARY TRUSTEES

The Annual Report of the Librarian to the Trustees, and the list of titles of books added to the library in the past year, are herewith submitted.

The Librarian's report shows that 22,434 volumes were taken from the library during the year. This is the largest circulation recorded. The figures are gratifying, but the fact that of these, 73 per cent are classified as "Fiction" and read for entertainment somewhat modifies the satisfaction. Our library is rich in books of Art, Literature, History, Biography and other sources of information, the per centage of which, as read, are not in proportion. With our fine collection of books of reference available in the reading rooms, it would seem that the children might extend their school work here to advantage. In this town, before the Public Library was formed, each of the school houses of the then existing "Districts" had its small school library. Upon the opening of the Town Library, these school libraries were all merged into it, and it was expected that the children would eagerly avail themselves of the increased opportunities and resources of the larger library. This, as regards the reading room of the main library, unusually attractive and adapted to its purpose as it is has never been satisfactorily realized. It is not not used as it might be. At the Cochituate reading room its advantages are better appreciated. This is a popular resort, and its resources are more fully utilized.

The Trustees would earnestly recommend that an independent water supply be installed in the main library. During the past year no water was available here for three months.
